Building a healthier and happier community

About Us

The history of our medical centre dates back to the 1980s when Dr Joseph Przybylko started consulting from the local shopping centre, then called Beefacres.

Beefacres dates back to the 1950s and originally there was a deli, butcher, fruit & veg, hairdresser, chemist and a doctor. It was the local community centre that serviced the growing population of farmers and migrants.

Oakden Medical Centre was established in the mid 1990s. Originally the building was an office for the legume and grain packaging company "Anchor".

Behind the office building (where the current retirement village is) was the factory, with sheds, silos and conveyor belts.

Oakden has grown from a dilapidated single-story building to the state of the art medical centre it is today. Our final renovations were completed in 2013, with the majority of work being carried out by local trades who were patients of ours.
